Using all of their talent? That is possible for TVU trainees!

TVU. News – July 2018

Currently, there are 158 employees in TVU. 17 of these employees are trainees in 8 different professions:

- Industrial management assistant
- European management assistant
- Textile product finisher
- Textile laboratory assistant
- Textile machine and systems operator
- IT specialist
- Warehouse logistics specialist

- Mechatronic technician

We are very proud of having various different fields of education. This “invest in people” is an important step for our future and is as important as investment in latest machinery, high quality yarns and dyestuff.

In the “war for talents” companies fight for getting the best junior staff. In these times the apprenticeship gets more and more important. Only because of intensive marketing we were able to fill all vacant training positions. Therefore we have been using for example new channels like Facebook or have been joining in more regional job fairs or trying to be a reliable partner for local schools. We are happy to welcoming school classes for company tours to show the pupils how their clothes are dyed and that for example in their identity cards there is TVU yarn inside.

“Ancora imparo” – that means “I am still learning!” That was what Michelangelo one of the most famous renaissance artists said at the age of 87 years. If he used these words in old age also for us this phrase should be very important even today and even for all workers not only for apprentices in TVU. We are continually updating and refining our skills and knowledge.

Especially we trainee instructors are looking forward to July this year as we will be joining a “basecamp” with our trainees in south Germany.

Key qualifications like team spirit, communication skills, empathy, and power of endurance will be promoted and improved there. For our corporate philosophy this is absolutely essential. We are confident that such investment in people will move TVU forward.
